Ski industry hopes lift tax is dead

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Maine ski officials are "cautiously optimistic" that an avalanche of economic analysis and lobbying has buried Governor McKernan's proposal to slap a 6 percent sales tax on lift tickets—as well as on a variety of other recreational services.

McKernan had proposed the new taxes as one part of his plan for solving the state's current budget problems.

However, as of Tuesday the new tax was not part of the budget proposal on the table in Augusta, and there seemed little likelihood that it would be added back into any final package.

"But it's still a wild card," said Skip King, Sunday River communication director. "Nobody's relaxing yet."

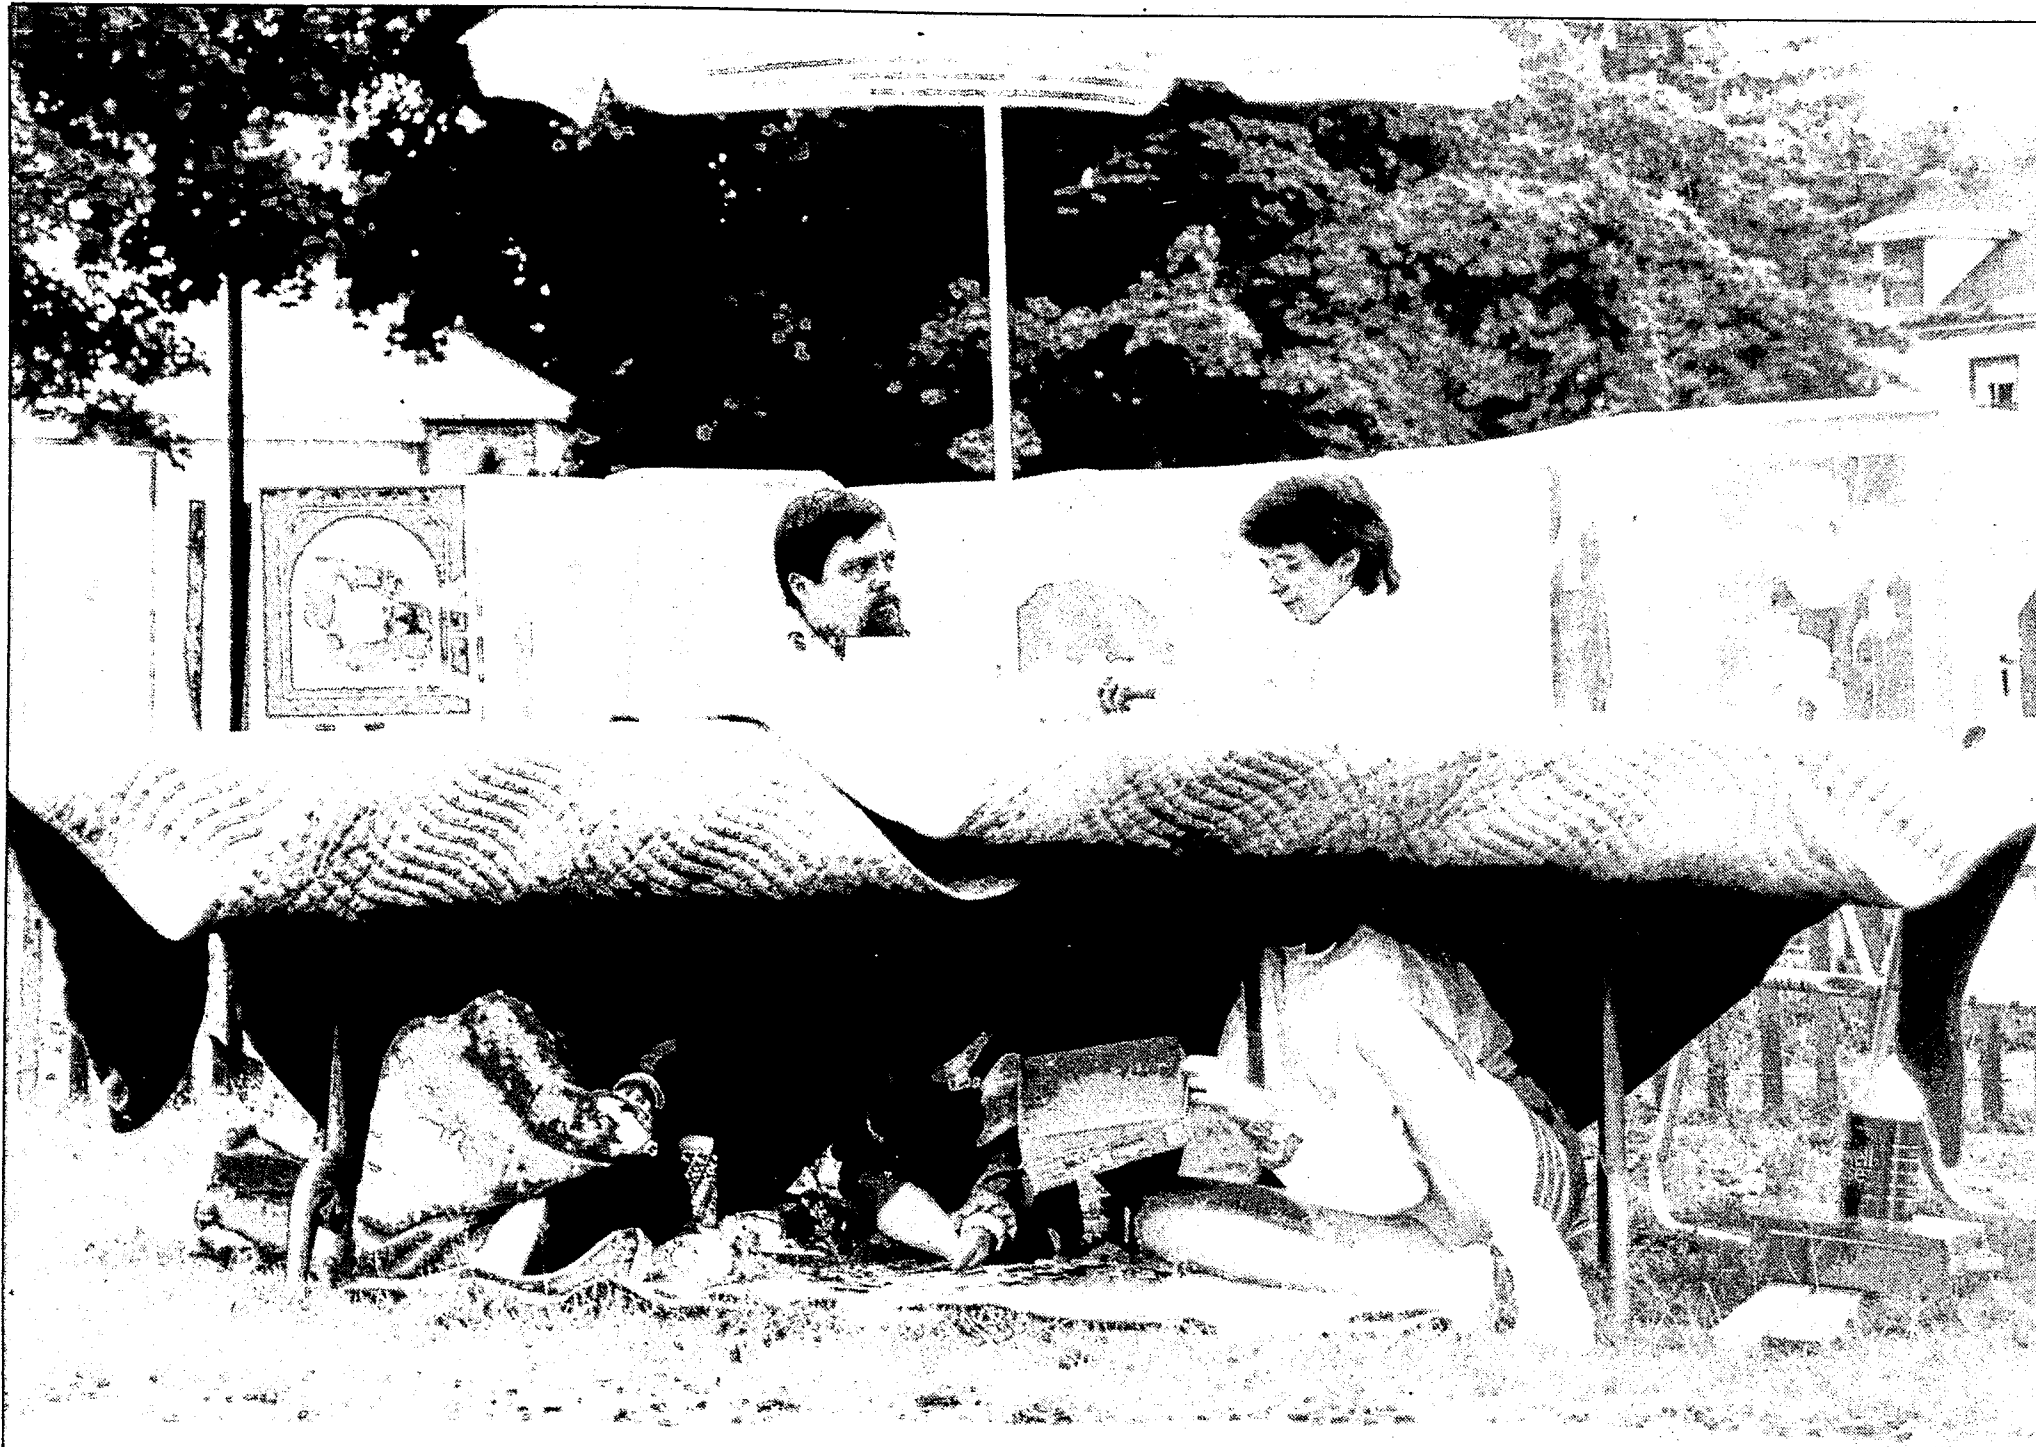

The Ski Maine Association has strongly contested McKernan's proposal, arguing that the ski industry is already highly price competitive, and the new tax would drive skiers across the border to New Hampshire.

Ski Maine also claimed that skiers "spin off" three dollars of taxable revenue for every dollar spent on lift tickets, and that the net effect of the new tax would actually be to reduce the state's tax income.

The association claimed that the new tax would create an excessive burden for Maine ski areas—by forcing them to absorb the new cost themselves (if they wished to remain competitive) rather than passing it on to customers.

Maine areas, the association pointed out, already pay Workman's Compensation rates that are 50 percent higher than in neighboring New Hampshire.

Ski Maine also claimed that the new tax would represent double taxation. See TICKET TAX, page 2

UNDER-THE-TABLE DEALINGS IN THE ART WORLD—Erin Dennis, Amanda and Charli McGrew and Hillary Harrison headed for a handy shelter during a wet stretch at Saturdays' Bethel Area Art Fair. Topides, Chad and Irene McGrew toughed out the storm as they displayed works the Frame N Art Gallery in Locke Mills. There were 32 artists with works on display at this year's fair, and all but two made sales, according to organizer Tom McGinniss. McGinniss said he made the decision at 5 a.m. to go ahead with the fair despite the threatening weather. Fortunately, the risk was rewarded—it drizzled off and on throughout the day, but the rain never got heavy enough to drive away the browsers and buyers. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

Environmental assessment issued on Lake Umbagog refuge proposal

Three options studied for protecting wildlife and wetlands on Northern Maine/N.H. border

A final environmental assessment of a proposal to create a national wildlife refuge on the lands adjacent to Lake Umbagog on the northern Maine-New Hampshire border has been issued.

Jim Yarnell of Upton, an active member of an informal group that has been studying such a proposal for more than two years, said the assessment—which was prepared by the Fish and Wildlife Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior—was "environmentally very sound."

In addition, Yarnell said, "The people who have some sort of interest have all been listened to very thoroughly and their concerns dealt with." He pointed, for example, to the concerns of least holders who have built camps in the lake area.

Yarnell termed the plan (actually, three different but related options)

"probably the only way a potential refuge area in the Rangelys is going to be established."

Ronald E. Lambert, Northeast regional director for the Fish and Wildlife Service, said: "Lake Umbagog is one of the most valuable and spectacular areas for wildlife in northern New England."

Wetlands along the lake are home to several threatened and endangered species, Lambert noted, plus species of federal and state management concern, such as loons, osprey and black ducks.

The proposal to create Lake Umbagog National Wildlife Refuge is part of a cooperative protection effort developed by a coalition of New Hampshire and Maine state agencies; conservation groups; the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; and major landowners in the area—the James River Corporation, the Boise Cascade Paper Group, and the Seven Islands Land Management Company.

"Members of the coalition are to be saluted for their work to protect such a pristine and valuable resource," said Lambert. "Partnerships at the Federal, State, and local level were critical to the success of this project."

Lambert noted that modifications to existing alternatives were developed in response to public comments on the draft EA. Comments received on the draft document are summarized and a project summary has been added to the final EA. Each alternative is discussed in detail, as is the proposed use of conservation easements on upland areas.

Alternative two, the service's pro-

Newry asked to OK regs for shoreland zoning, interim development

By WENDY HANSCOM

Newry selectmen have scheduled a special town meeting to seek voter approval on the town's revised shoreland zoning ordinance and interim unified development review ordinance.

The meeting will be held Tuesday, July 23 at 7 p.m., at the town office. The shoreland zoning revisions, proposed by the town's planning board, include new zoning guidelines for wetlands and streams. The state has mandated that towns adopt new shoreland zoning ordinances by December 1991.

In Newry, the ordinances will apply in areas within 75 feet of the highwater mark of streams and within 250 feet of the high-water mark on the Bear and Sunday rivers, in flood-

Sen. Mitchell's field representative in Bethel

Senator George J. Mitchell has announced that his field representative, Janet P. Welch, will hold office hours on Wednesday, July 17, 1991 at the Bethel Town Office from 2 to 3 p.m. "Anyone wishing to bring to my attention their problems or concerns with the federal government is urged to meet with Janet during her visit," Mitchell said.

The Senator maintains a field office in Androscoggin County to service the Androscoggin-Oxford-Franklin Counties area. It is located at 11 Lisbon Street, Lewiston, and is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

This office can be reached by calling 784-0163.

Artists do brisk business

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The second annual Bethel Area Art Fair, held Saturday on the common, was a great success.

Despite the cloud weather and occasional showers, the 32 artists in the fair drew a good crowd and sold more than 75 works—four times the number sold the first year of the fair.

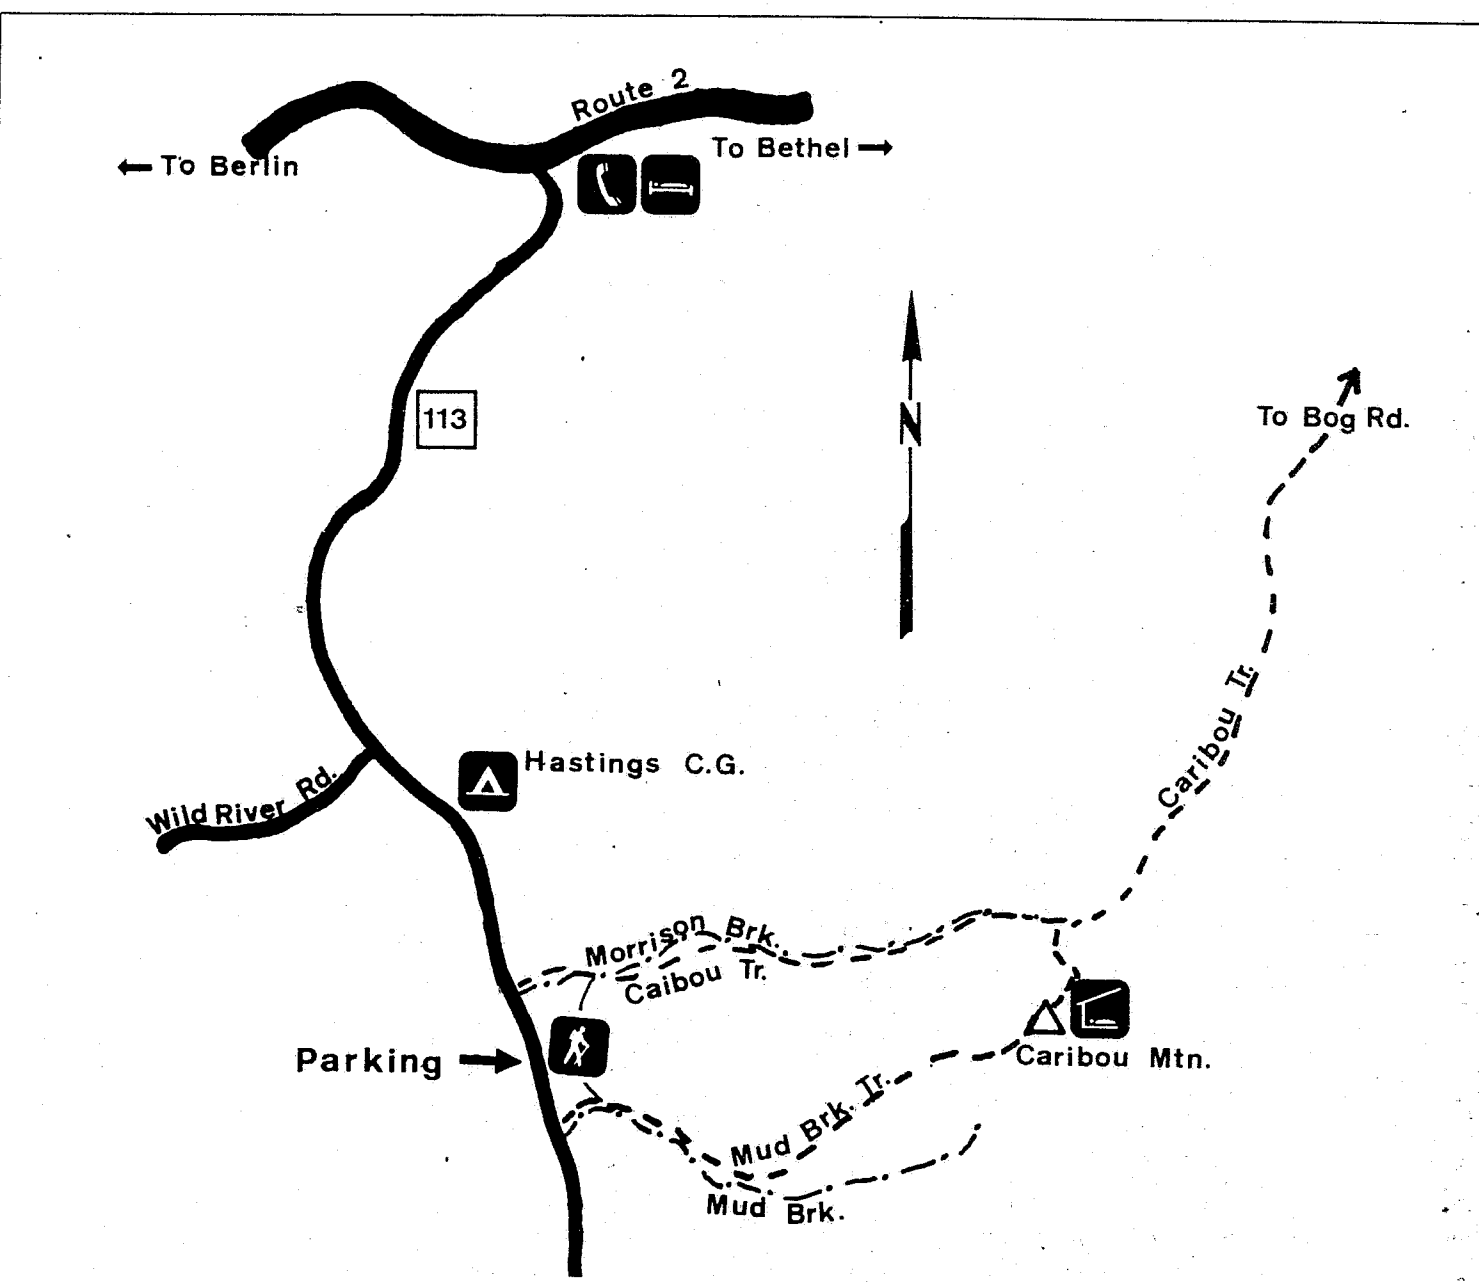

All but two of the artists made a sale, according to organizer Tom McGinniss, and the works were also selling for prices substantially higher than last year.

McGinniss said he hopes that next year the young art fair will once again double in size—and bring even more art lovers into the area.

This year's art fair was sponsored by village shops and other businesses; the set up and clean up handled by willing volunteers; and the big-top main tent supplied by Sunday River.

McGinniss thanked them all, as well as judges Tim Kavanagh, Naudia Gay and Jan Baker, and Don Murphy, who provided revival rock throughout the day.

In prize judging, Don Sawyer of Falmouth took first place, Juanita Perkins of Center Lovell took second and Kitty Monroe of Kingfield took third. Among the six honorable mentions were Ruth Haskell and Chad McGrew of Bryant Pond and Lucian Forcica of Rumford Center.

Caribou hikers have new place to park

By WENDY HANSCOM

The U.S. Forest Service has completed a new parking area between two Caribou Mountain trails in Evans Notch.

District Ranger Chad Converse said the new lot will make it possible for hikers to make an unbroken loop hike on the Caribou and the Mud Brook trails.

In the past, hikers making the loop parked their vehicles near one of the trail heads. After the hike they would walk a half mile on Route 113 back to their vehicles. Both trails now have new sections through the woods that connect to the parking lot. The new 20-car capacity lot is located on Route 113 six miles south of Gilead.

The Caribou Trail is 5.2 miles long and ends at the Bog Road in Mason Township. It intersects with Mud Brook Trail north of the summit. The trail crosses Morrison Brook several times before it reaches a 25ft. waterfall about two miles up.

Mud Brook Trail is 3.6 miles long. The trail leaves the south side of the parking area and follows an old logging trail, rising gradually for one and three-quarters miles. The trail then rises steeply going over a small bare knob and then after descending into a small ravine it crosses ledges before reaching Caribou Mountain's summit.

The summit of Caribou is known for its 360 degree view of the Cold River Valley, the Carter, Presidential and Mahosuc ranges and the Bethel area.

Caribou Mountain is located in the Caribou/Spotted Mountain Wilderness area. For more information about hiking in the National Forest stop by the White Mountains National Forest-Evans Notch Ranger District in Bethel.

Two local people among the beautiful people of People Magazine

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Two of "The 50 most beautiful people in the world," can be found modestly tending their pots at Mountain Greenery in West Bethel.

Greenhouse partners Leslie Kavanagh and Sally Sawyer are among 12 Maine residents featured in the Summer 1991 issue of People Magazine—now on the newsstands. The magazine's cover, which features photographs of Julia Roberts, Mel Gibson, Michael Jordan and Chynna Phillips, promises a "photo spectacular extra" of the world's most beautiful 50.

Kavanagh and Sawyer (they are inside on page 113) are among "24 everyday Americans celebrated in the 'Local Lookers' section of the special issue."

They were caught by People photographer Mario Ruiz as he swung through Maine in March. "He came in at the end of the day when we were covered head to toe in dirt," Kavanagh said.

Suitably cleaned up, the pair posed for a lovely photo.

Kavanagh said her husband, Tim, and children, Kailin and Erin, are eagerly awaiting seeing Mom in People.

For herself, she's a bit less eager. "I really don't like having my picture taken," she said, "but we thought it might be good for the business."

In the photo caption Sawyer said, "We start planting in early February, and the growing season is very short. ... It's pretty intense."

During the winter, Sawyer also manages the ski touring center at the Bethel Inn.

According to the caption, "Both like their green thumbs but say they would change their noses."

LOW-LEVEL OVERFLIGHTS—WE NEED TO KNOW ALL THE FACTS

To the Editor:

Your July 3 article on the proposed expansion of low-level military training flights was excellent. I want to clear up a couple of points about our organization and these flights.

First, the Western Maine Alliance is not an economic-development group. We do work to strengthen broad-based prosperity in four counties of rural Maine, but we're also concerned with environmental issues and with improving communication and leadership in this region. (Contrary to Mr. McMillin's letter to you, we feel that the Chambers of Commerce usually do a good job. We don't want to duplicate their efforts.)

Second, our biggest concern with the proposed new flights rules is to be sure the public gets accurate information in advance, that the decision be made after the government listens carefully, and that all impacts of the proposal are examined.

We are not opposing this proposal, yet. Several important questions must be answered before anyone makes a decision. Why don't the planes train over Connecticut and Massachusetts, if many will come from there? How safe is it for jets to fly low over the airport at Bangor, as they do now? Will certain areas or times of the day be off-limits—and how seriously will the military take violations?

The problem with violations now isn't punishing pilots—it's that no one knows how often they occur. (They are not rare events.) In fact, the military's left hand doesn't seem to know what the right hand is doing. For example, the Maine National Guard didn't know or wouldn't say that the "tree-top" visual-flight corridors even exist.

Our region isn't an uninhabited wasteland. Expanded low-level flights will affect our homes, towns, businesses and wildlife. We need to know how, and why, they may be needed. I urge everyone who's interested to understand the issue and are involved, ask questions and speak up. We appreciate the National Guard scheduling a meeting in western Maine; everyone who can attend—7 p.m. July 24, in Farmington—please do so.

NTH WAS FUN WHILE IT LASTED, AND EDUCATIONAL FOR US ALL

To the Editor:

Congratulations on a thoughtful editorial concerning NTH in last week's issue. Regardless of how one feels about the organization's presence in Bethel these 44 years, it has certainly made the town more interesting and better known throughout the world than otherwise might have been the case.

On a personal level, NTH provided me with my first extensive exposure to a wide range of races, backgrounds and cultures. As a child, I vividly remember coming to town and seeing African Americans, Indian women in saris, men in turbans, etc.; it was exciting to see real people who resembled those I had only known in books and magazines. In the 1950s, several NTH families stayed in East Bethel near us and it was wonderful to have such interesting children to befriend.

My first memory of a negative reaction to NTH was uttered by our family physician who referred to it as "a bunch of damn communists," typical fare for the McCarthyite 1950s when almost everything fell into this category.

Bethel people grew to depend on NTH's contribution to the local economy; they increasingly became tolerant of certain aspects of what they considered unorthodox behavior seen about town. I heard negative comments about NTH as I was growing up, but also knew that several of the "natives" found the NTH experience very much to their liking. Through the years, reactions have ranged from "oracles of the obvious" to "the ultimate experience."

It was when I became involved professionally with the historical society in 1974 that I began to have more extensive exposure to the NTH phenomena. A flood of memories comes to mind as I review the past 17 years. Sure, there was the often-described rude behavior; there was the condescending question, "What do you people do in the winter?" which I responded to with an answer that a Canadian told me he always gave when asked the same thing about Canada in the wintertime. "Oh, we tend out trap lines, draw our water, and hew our wood."

There were sleepless times because T-Groups decided to spend nights in the back yard of the Dr. Moses Mason House; there also was that glorious time we were having a Society committee meeting in the summer house in our back yard when an NTH participant told us we had to leave since this building was reserved for NTH.

But there were moments of real learning and fun. I well remember talking extensively with a specialist in community organization and development, who asked such penetrating questions about Bethel's past that I began to re-think my whole approach to the town's history. I also vividly recall the scene of meeting with a high official from the Indonesian government, who talked with me about community development while my father and I were putting in the post for the large sign at the library. He was absolutely scandalized that a person with a Ph.D. would be doing manual labor. I told him that in a small town volunteerism was particularly important for non-profit organizations to ensure their survival. As the then-president of the Bethel Library Association, it was essential that I do my part like everyone else. I don't think I convinced him, but I believe he left with a better idea of what life in small-town America is like after our meeting.

There are many other comments which might be made, but I think it is important to stress that NTH is one of the ingredients which makes Bethel a unique Maine town. As we continue our evolution as a community, educational and cultural activities seem to be one of the best ways of ensuring our economic future. NTH, Gould Academy, SAD #44, Elderhostel, Mahosuc Arts Council, the Bethel Library, Outward Bound and the Bethel Historical Society, for example, all contribute to Bethel's reputation as an educational center. We need to do much more to strengthen this already strong base.

Regardless of how the current situation with NTH is resolved, the verdict of history will undoubtedly be that NTH has been a significant influence upon the town. It has made Bethel more cosmopolitan than some of its neighbors, more accepting of cultural and ethnic diversity despite racial incidents which have occurred through the years.

If in fact, NTH does leave Bethel, the burden will be on us to explain any unusual behavior observed in town in another way. We won't be able to say as we have for years, "Oh that's just NTH."

Woodstock town office has new security system

A new security system at the Woodstock town office is now operational.

Selectmen approved its purchase and installation last month. Town Manager Vern Maxfield updated selectmen on the new system at last week's selectmen's meeting. He said the system is a "precautionary measure," and to his knowledge the town office has never been broken into.

In other business last week, selectmen are looking into the cost of repairing the town's grandstand. Selectmen are awaiting estimates before deciding to recommend repair or replacement. Maxfield said in either case a committee may be appointed to raise funds for the project.

Maxfield told selectmen that the town's county taxes rose by $3,000. He is also working on improving the town's building permit application, he said.

WEATHER ONLY A FISH COULD LOVE—The recent spell of dreary, drizzly weather may have put a damper on lots of outdoor plans, but it didn't stop scores of art lovers from turning out for the second annual Bethel Area Art Fair, held Saturday on the Bethel Common. hazard areas in the 100-year floodplain and in wetlands.

The plan also creates shoreland zoning districts. Those districts are: resource protection, limited residential, limited commercial and stream protection.

The limited commercial and stream protection districts are new to the town.

A public hearing was held in May on the proposed plan. The planning board and selectmen were the only townspeople who attended. The selectmen raised no objections to the plan. Voters will also be asked to approve the proposed interim unified development review ordinance, as proposed by the growth management advisory committee.

The plan is a comprehensive package of new zoning ordinances and for the state's ski areas, which already pay sales taxes on the equipment and supplies that are used "for production of the skiing product"—that is, snowmaking, grooming, lift operation, etc. (The ski industry has long argued that this is essentially a manufacturing process and should be exempt from sales tax. The courts, however, have not been sympathetic to this argument.)

Ski Maine further claimed that the governor's proposal would "undermine an excellent sales opportunity for Maine ski resorts to expand their business, and the state to gain tax revenues. Most major Vermont ski resorts will be pushing ticket prices to or past the $40 mark during the upcoming season; this is viewed as a significant psychological barrier by many ski industry analysts," Ski Maine said.

If Maine is able to hold the line on prices, the association claimed, "the state stands to gain significantly increased revenue in the form of hospitality, fuel, and retail taxes." But if Maine areas are also forced to raise their prices, these potential gains will be lost to New Hampshire or to western states, the association contended.

Ski Maine also noted that—contrary to the popular misconception—the ski industry itself is not highly profitable. Only one of Maine's 13 ski areas, Sunday River, reported a profit for the 1990-91 season.

Many areas, especially smaller ones, are barely hanging on. Ski Maine claimed that a new tax could push them over the brink.

Ski Maine also noted that the new tax would be paid not primarily by rich out-of-staters, but by Mainers, who make up approximately 30 percent of the clientele at the state's two major areas (Sunday River and Sugarloaf) and nearly all the business at some of the smaller areas.

Sunday River's Skip King said the association and the individual areas "lobbied extremely hard" to defeat the proposed tax, and that "everybody in Ski Maine took an active role."

King said that while the tax itself was a bad idea, in the long run the governor's proposal could be a good thing for the Maine ski industry. "If Maine ski areas can work as effectively together on other issues as they did one this, then it's a very promising development," he said.

Newry tax rate up

Tax bills sent this week to Newry property owners reflect a 1.2 mill increase in the town's tax rate.

Selectman Willard Wight said SAD #44's assessment caused the rate to go up "a little over one mill." Newry's school assessment rose 4.02 percent, from $729,377 to $758,706. The total valuation of Newry climbed by over $2 million during the past year.

performance standards. These ordinances are also mandated by the state and will replace the town's current assortment of developmental regulations, until a comprehensive plan for the town is adopted.

The 10-year plan proposes three districts: general development, rural development and resource protected district.

In the Bear River Valley, the general development district begins at the intersection of routes 2 and 26 and continues up Route 26 for approximately three miles. The rest of the valley would be zoned rural development.

Most of the area in the Sunday River Valley, from the Bethel town line to the Riley town line, would be zoned general development. A majority of that land is owned or under the control of Sunday River Ski Resort, the town's largest developer.

Some areas above the Skiway Access Road are in the 100-year flood plain and protected from development. The land around the Artist Bridge and the fields above the bridge are designated as resource protected. The land returns to general development near the Hurricane Outward Bound School. Much of the land from the school to the Riley town line is also under the control of the ski resort. The growth committee designated any land owned or under control by Sunday River Ski Resort as general development.

The performance standards contained in the ordinance refer to such matters as noise restrictions, odor control, road setbacks, sewage disposal, erosion control and protection of the aesthetic, cultural and natural values.

The town held a public hearing on the proposed ordinance in February. Zoning regulations are new to the town and residents asked basic questions regarding how the various zones were determined. Some questioned the reasoning behind the designation of a general development district in the Bear River Valley.

Committee Chairman Les Otten said the first few miles of Route 26 were designated as growth development because the area currently contains two gas stations and three gravel pits. He said the committee used existing patterns of growth as a guide in determining the development zones.

ALANSON AND FANNIE CUMMINGS IN 1942

Alanson Cummings laid to rest with full military honors

Over 300 people attended the funeral of U.S. Navy veteran Alanson Cummings last week.

Cummings, 83, died July 1. A 70-year charter member of the Jackson-Silver Post in Locke Mills, he was buried with full military honors and a 21-gun salute.

The former West Paris fire chief's flag-draped casket was carried on one of the town's fire engines to the Wayside Cemetery, West Paris.

Cummings had requested that he be carried to his funeral on a fire engine that he had built, but that truck was not in service. Members of the West Paris Fire Department polished the newer model truck for a full day in preparation for the funeral procession. Cummings' memorial service was held at The Church of the Nazarene in Bethel. His life was eulogized by his nephew, Lloyd Waterhouse. Cummings' widow, Fannie, said his life course was held up as an example for others to follow. She said family members will remember him not only as a community-minded patriot, but as a humanitarian.

Fannie cited several examples of Cummings' willingness to aid others. She said, for example, that during the flu epidemic that followed World War II Cummings carried several sick people in the town of West Paris up three flights of stairs to where they could get treatment from a practical nurse. The nurse ran a nursing home and could not make house calls, so Cummings delivered patients too weak to climb the stairs.

Cummings was a veteran of World War I and World War II. His funeral was attended by over 100 Legionnaires. At his interment the Jackson-Silver American Legion Post Color Guard served as pallbearers. Members of the Honor Guard were also present. Other legion dignitaries present were Richard M. Blouin, deputy commander of the American Legion of Maine and Vice Commander Doris Baker.

Following the graveside services, American Legion Department of Maine Americanism Officer Ed Roch presented Fannie with the flag which draped her husband's casket. Cummings was buried in his Navy uniform along with his West Paris Fire Chief badge.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Approximately forty members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society gathered on the grounds of the historic East Bethel Church for the Society's annual picnic.

Following this event they adjourned to the interior of the church for a business meeting and an opportunity to hear Charles Plummer of Auburn perform as Joshua Chamberlain, famed Civil War general, Maine governor and president of Bowdoin College.

Chamberlain's difficult military campaigns were described in detail as were the number of wounds he received in the Civil War. Plummer's performance brought to those present a vivid, first-hand view of America's bloodiest episodes through the experience of a Maine man, born in Brewer in 1828. Chamberlain survived until 1914.

During the business portion of the meeting, president Jane Hosterman announced that the next meeting would be held in Odeon Hall at the Cole Block in honor of the structure's centenary and would feature a history of this historic Bethel landmark.

The "Artifact of the Month" was announced as a framed photograph of the Gould Academy student body in 1925, the gift of Julia Brown of Bethel.

President Hosterman announced some upcoming events: Sudbury Canada Days will be held on August 10-11 this year; volunteers are needed on many fronts as craft demonstrators, event supervisors and for general assistance; anyone interested in helping should call the Society office at 824-2908; the Maine Kimbells will meet at the Dr. Moses Mason House on August 18; the Oxford County League of Historical Societies will meet at the Andover Town Hall, at 2 p.m. on July 13, Allan Fraser will provide a slide show of local scenes and people of a bygone era.

The Society extends condolences to the families of two life members who recently died: Ruth Verville and Mary Chadbourne. Both were active volunteers in the 1970s and their record of service to the organization was outstanding.

posed action, was modified to include acquisition of conservation easements around C Pond and on Big Island. The alternative also shows areas in Maine to be protected by the Land for Maine's Future Board. The EA was also modified to allow the Service to acquire remaining interests in lands protected through conservation easements, if landowners choose this option in the future.

Alternative three, Modified Cooperative Effort, was expanded to provide a 1,000-foot easement along the eastern lake shore and Rapid River corridor (3,815 acres) for protection by the Service, if the protection effort envisioned by the Land for Maine's Future Board were not to materialize. A fourth alternative was added to describe acquisition of only the central core wetlands plus a 1,000-foot upland forested buffer zone.

Protection of habitat for black ducks and other wetland-dependent wildlife along the Atlantic Coast is a priority of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan, an agreement between the United States, Canada, and Mexico that calls for cooperation between federal and state agencies, conservation groups, businesses, and private citizens to accomplish its goals.

Approval of the proposed action would authorize the Service to acquire lands or interests in land within the boundary from willing sellers and manage the area to protect wildlife and its habitat. Wildlife-oriented recreation such as hunting, fishing, trapping, and wildlife observation would be continued at levels compatible with wildlife conservation objectives. Opportunities for environmental education and interpretation would also be developed.

Copies of the final EA and a "Finding of No Significant Impact" (FONSI), required by the National Environmental Policy Act, are available from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (RE), One Gateway Center, Newton Corner, Mass., 02458, or by calling 617-985-5100, ext. 410.

A 30-day public review period for the FONSI closes on July 29. Questions or comments can be directed to the above address.

DRAWING THE HEAD: FRONT VIEW

Portraiture offers infinite variety for an artist to create character. A black drawn in proportion 3 units wide x 4 units high, will give you the basic frame. Divide the height in two parts and the lower half in half again. The third line is drawn dividing the lower quarter in half. Remember these are guide lines. Each face is different.

force hopes to convince the board to look at the matter sooner—before Aug. 15, when the brochure describing next year's season workshops (and their locations) is set to go to the printer.

As the situation now stands, the conference center is slated to be closed next summer, and few if any courses are to be offered there or elsewhere in Bethel.

The task force's request that the decision to leave be put on hold for a year will be made in a letter to the board. The letter is currently being drafted.

Task force members acknowledged, however, that while the letter would be useful for communicating the town's willingness to work with NTL, the real pressure to reverse the decision must come from the members themselves. A suggestion was made Sunday that the task force write directly to the 435 NTL members, urging them to press the board to reconsider the decision. But that suggestion was turned down, as the task force members concurred that such a move might be viewed as overly aggressive and could backfire against the town.

Most of Sunday's two-hour meeting was spent looking at NTL's decision to leave and considering ways it might be reversed. But the task force also heard brief reports two other subcommittees, one studying ways to maintain Bethel as a center for culture and education, the second looking at area's long-term development options.

Among the possibilities raised by the second group was reactivating the Bethel Area Development Corporation.

It was also suggested later that the development corporation might be able to enter into a purchase/leaseback arrangement with NTL, under which the corporation would buy the conference center and then sign NTL to a long-term lease.

Sunday River Skiway Marketing Director Bill Jensen said that such an arrangement would provide NTL with the capital needed for expansion, while still allowing the organization to maintain its commitment to the Bethel area.

Arrests made after Bethel incidents involving firearms

By WENDY HANSCOM

In less than three days recently, the Bethel police made arrests in two separate incidents involving firearms.

On Saturday, July 6, Joseph Brown, 19, of Bethel was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. On Monday, July 8, Hebert Edwards, 42, of Oxford was charged with reckless conduct with a weapon and criminal trespass.

In Saturday's incident, Bethel police responded to a complaint of a fight at the "silo" on Sunset Road. When officer Mike Fortin arrived he was told by Brown that several people had come onto the property and then refused to leave. "Supposedly, Joseph Brown didn't feel they were going to leave so he got his 22 rifle out and said that he shot one shot in the air just to scare them away," he said.

Fortin was given several names of the alleged trespassers and then stalked out the area. James Meader, 25, of Bethel was one of the names on the list. "When I saw Jamie Meader go by, I stopped him and found out that he had been shot. He had gunshot fragments in his forehead and the side of his head," Fortin said.

Fortin also noted that the vehicle Meader was driving had been shot once. Before Fortin finished interviewing Meader, the officer said he received another complaint that people were up to the silo again, this time smashing windows in an effort to gain entry to the building. "I instructed Meader to wait for me at the police station," Fortin said. "I called a state and county unit for assistance."

Fortin arrived back at the scene with a state trooper and found that the subjects were gone.

Fortin then returned to the police station and found that Meader's vehicle had two bullet holes in it. Fortin took statements from the people who were in the vehicle with Meader. He then arrested Meader on an outstanding warrant for failure to appear at Rumford District Court and on operating after a suspended driver's license.

While transporting Meader to Oxford County Jail, Bethel police received another complaint regarding the silo. "We got another call that people were smashing everything up there," Fortin said. "State and county units responded to the call because I was transporting Meader."

Fortin said further investigation may lead to the arrest of subjects on criminal mischief charges. He said the sheriff's department identified at least one suspect involved in the vandalism at the silo. The sheriff's department impounded two vehicles at the scene, which police searched Tuesday.

The investigation after the shooting incident led to the arrest of Brown. In Monday's incident, Edwards, a skidder operator and former employee of Robert Gregory and Son, was arrested after he allegedly held Scott Gregory of South Paris, the son of his former employer, at gun point in the woods off the Middle Intervale Road, where the company was working.

The incident apparently stemmed from an argument over Meader's final paycheck from the company. Both men were in vehicles and Edwards radioed for assistance and a company truckdriver in Farmington relayed the call to authorities.

Bethel Police Officer Darren Tripp responded to the scene, where Edwards waited for police to arrive.

Edwards was charged with reckless conduct with a weapon and criminal mischief. He was released on bail Monday afternoon.

"Quiet has once more settled on the serenity" so to speak. The swallows have pretty well disappeared, perhaps already starting the long trip south. I'm not enough of a bird watcher to know where they go after they nest. Certainly there were a goodly number around two weeks ago and now there seems to be a half a dozen. Hopefully the little killdeer who were left (they, the parents, started out with seven or more small ones running behind, like small dots and the last time I saw them there were only three) have taken to the skies. I could not believe the parents would take them around where there were so many cats but they were all over the neighborhood, crossing the street in front of cars, down along the banks of the brook, etc. so it is a wonder if any of them made it.

The only thing that has happened so far this week is while in the process of cleaning I lifted a chair, stepped on the end of the extension cord the vacuum was plugged into while in bare feet, made a quick exit off that and in doing so slammed the chair down on top of my foot. Just a typical normal thing to have happen to a klutz like me. So now I have a painful knee from the episode of last week, a sore place on the sole of one foot, and the top of the other is not in such great shape either. Statistics say the home is one of the more dangerous places to be and far be it from me to make a liar out of them. I can't remember that I was such a klutz as a child. John says he's always been. Perhaps I caught it from him. Certainly he's gotten more careful over the years and I have taken over. I've offered to help with the woodpile but he says "no way." Jose. He doesn't want me within a hundred feet of that chainsaw. He says I may be allowed to pile some later if I get some combat boots, shin guards, padded gloves and a helmet. So it's back to cleaning my cupboards. The most I can do there is fall off a chair—or is it?

The Greenwood Fire Department training session is scheduled for July 17th at 6:30 p.m. at the Fire Station. The Val Greenes were here at their house for the weekend, just a short stay for them this time.

The plant of Gilbert's Manufacturing Co. is down for a week's vacation with only the maintenance, some office crew and a few others working. The weather certainly has cooperated for those on vacation. It has been the kind of week we'd like to have all summer, except for a day or so of rain now and then to replenish the water supply and nourish the gardens and lawns.

Craig and Sandy Nash visited John and Lorraine Mills one day this past week and brought them some more wood. Craig is a supervisor for D.O.T. so the state budget has been helpful in giving him more time off than he really needs.

The annual Sunday School picnic of Praise Assembly of God was held Sunday at "Pip" Cummings camp on North Pond. A cookout was enjoyed as well as volleyball, swimming, boating, and sometimes just resting on the screened porch or by the water. Those present were Pastor Rob Rainville, Denise, and the children, Amanda, Emily, Andrea, and Ryan; Dot and Roger Chopping; Bob and Loni Driscoll and Ryan; Linda Hughes, Vickie, James and Rusty; Wanda Hutchinson with sons, Donald and Ray, and a nephew; Lorraine and John Mills; Jennie Walter and Derek; Lillian Jasper; Mary Ranks; Crystal Lake; Craig and Sandy Nash; and the hosts Debbie and Owen Brown with children Kim, Alan and Tracey along with Debbie's father Pip Cummings. My apologies if I've left anyone out. Some of the families were on vacation and away visiting so it's hard to remember exactly. While I'm on the subject of church I received a call from former pastor Lyle Van Horn last week. They are still in Kentucky where he has just finished his first year on his doctorate. His hip operation is now behind him and he says he's coming along well. I got to talk with both Andrew and Daniel who inform me they are quite grown-up. From their conversations I can believe it even though Daniel has just had his seventh birthday.

I think the people are worrying unnecessarily about getting "buzzed" by the planes. As near as I can see the airmen seem for the most part, proud of their reputations and the job they are doing and go about it in a pretty businesslike manner. Certainly planes make noise, but unless it's constant, in other places they seem to co-exist pretty well with other things. The cows in Vermont graze placidly in the fields as the planes fly low overhead, they don't even stop to look up. I've been out in the field and other than the occasional dip of a wing when I wave (when they are flying slow enough) they are there and then they are gone. I can't even get to a window here fast enough to see them and I love to watch them. To me they are a marvelous, miraculous invention and as long as they are the ones up there and not me I will continue to enjoy them.

I hope all the people out there who were not home on the fourth as this is being written will give me their news for next week's column. This town is quieter than it is on Sunday. I hope you are at picnics, reunions and whatever—and let us all in on it next week.

Pharmacy & Your Health

Dizziness and Vertigo Affect Millions

Many individuals believe that dizziness and vertigo are the same problem, or that dizziness is a mild form of vertigo. Actually, these are similar but different conditions. Together, dizziness and vertigo affect about 20 million Americans.

Dizziness is a symptom of many health problems and often is described as a feeling of "lightheadedness," "a giddy feeling" or "loss of contact with one's surroundings." Children under 14 rarely complain of feeling dizzy. But dizziness is one of the major reasons for physician office visits by the elderly.

Vertigo is associated with motion perception. Individuals may complain of spinning around, falling, dropping, tilting, or swaying. Vertigo results from changes that affect the vestibular system, which has to do with body balance and equilibrium. Dizziness and vertigo should always be evaluated by a physician. A thorough diagnosis is essential since there are so many causes for these problems. Prescription and non-prescription medicines such as antihistamines, blood vessel dilators, and scopolamine may provide relief.

By COLISTA MORGAN

Not too many years ago I found two plants of pink Jewel weed on the island of North Haven and I brought them home. They were so beautiful growing by mail boxes and I had never seen them. I have at times regretted it for they have spread and spread; in fact taken over. The plant grows tall with bright green stem and leaves almost translucent in sunlight. They have made jungles, but walk through them and you leave a clear path, for those stems have all the brittle frailty of any succulent plant. If the stems are broken they ooze a juice, which is declared a cure for poison ivy.

There is another kind, which I have always known since childhood, which has an orange-yellow blossom and is often seen along road sides.

Seen in the morning sunlight, jewel weed seems to glisten. Stop and look closely and you'll see how it got its name. Strange flowers with a deep sac like base and petals; joined in bell shape form have divided lobes and speckled like a robin's egg. These flowers are small and fragile and hang from slender stems. (They would make beautiful ear rings.) The bees and humming birds love them.

When the flowers are gone and the seed pods ripen; some inner tension makes the seeds pop and catapult, if touched. Therefore they are sometimes called Touch-me-nots. Because the seeds are hurled in all directions is the reason they spread so rapidly. It's amusing to touch them and watch the seed pop.

They just grow with no care of any kind. They are pretty and interesting but I have too many and would gladly share.

They usually bloom in July; the month of fireflies and the smell of sweet clover.

July is meadows frosted with Queen Anne's lace and daisies.

July is lightning and thunder and fledgling robins and lettuce from the garden.

July is fields of corn reaching for the sun.

It means pigweeds and purslane in the garden.

July means vacation time, the lakes, the shore, the country, picnics and sunbaths. Yes, July gives beautiful dawns and joy to be alive.

This has been an interesting week, if you like wildlife, but in some ways it was disturbing, at least to me. The coons have visited several nights. My bird feeders were torn down twice and one bird house taken from a tree and the baby birds are destroyed. They went too far and kept me awake. I went out and drove them away but they came back. So I captured three of them and they were transported to a "far off land" maybe lost but free, unharmed and happy, and so am I.

Bullwinkle has been back, the muskrat, deer and ducks and yes the snapping turtle. My neighbor's cat caught one muskrat, killed it and brought it home.

My callers have been Timmy and Fred Curtis, Rena Curtis, Town; Colista Cogswell and son Troy of Freeport; Zilpha DiArenzo, local.

Mary Holt visited her grandmother one day recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John Betts spent the weekend in Portsmouth.

I forgot to mention the strange bird that visited the pond for several days. It's shape was much like the blue heron, smaller, but has a metallic sheen on its glossy back plumage. It dropped into the water and could swim. Could it be the Water-Turkey?

Milton Imman and son Jeff and family were at their camp on Saturday building a new wharf.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Curtis, son Fred, and Timmy Curtis were on a camping trip over the weekend.

Callers at Rena Curtis' were Colista Cogswell, Lillian Strait of Freeport; Don and Carla Whittemore of Oxford.

Thursday, June 27 Mary Smith and I joined a bus load of senior citizens from North Waterford, Norway and Paris to go to Pine Point Camp Bake Restaurant for a luncheon. We visited the gift shop, so many nice things. On the way home we stopped at Naples for ice cream. Paul Lowe was our very good bus driver. It was a really warm day. Friday, June 28th I stayed in the house, it was too hot to go out.

Saturday, June 29 Mary Smith and I went to West Paris Grange Hall to a benefit dance for Amanda Dunham. A very good crowd and lot of fun. $5.00 was realized from the dance. She has had hard luck but such a brave little girl.

Sunday, June 30 I went to a North Woodstock Community Club meeting at the Pinhook Chapel. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. Plans were made for a flea market, August 3rd in the parking lot by the chapel. You may leave articles or food with Norma Davis or Herman Cole, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Tuesday July 2, Mary Smith and I went to Northland Restaurant in Berlin, N.H., then to Fashion Bug and Richs. We then visited Charlotte Cole, she was home. She gave us a small friendship cake, it was delicious and didn't last long Charlotte.

Tuesday, July 2, 14 West Paris senior citizens went to Naples to go on the Songo River Queen for a boat ride.

Russell and Peggy went strawberrying at Farmer Whiting's in Auburn on Wednesday morning and we put up the berries before I went to the doctor in the afternoon.

Thursday was the day for the meeting at West Bethel in the evening with a speaker from Androscoggin Home Health and we went to that. The program came first so we had supper there and stayed to the program then came home.

They were electing officers and we were afraid it would be rather late for us getting home. With the heat and all we decided not to stay.

Yesterday, Saturday, I went to Oxford with Bertha Benoit to a workshop for many grange members and we had a good day. Stopped in to visit with Marion Bennett for a little on the way home and then Bertha took me up to see her new home as I hadn't been there. Also had stopped at the Hungry Hollow Country Store where I had never been and what a collection of things they have there as well as all the goodies that they cook to sell. It sure smelled good when we walked in to the place. Made one hungry as all get out. However, I can't have things baked with wheat flour so didn't do me any good to smell all those nice things.

Saturday evening Russell and Peggy went to West Paris Grange Hall to the benefit dance for Amanda Dunham where they raised a little over $500 for her benefit. A great turn out and thanks to all who baked or took part in anyway. Mary said it sure was appreciated. This goes to help with Community Service projects also and helps in that way. Thanks to all who helped.

I asked Mary how Arlene Farr was doing and she said she is doing well for a young lady. Keep it up Arlene.

Vacation Bible School was interesting this year for the folks at West Paris Mission Congo Church as it was taught by folks from Lancaster, Penn. They also held a program at the East Sumner Church and gave the children in both towns a good time with a square dance which was called by Mr. Campbell who owns the general store in West Paris. Mary said they all had a grand time.

The dance that was to be held at West Paris on the 13th of July will be held at Locke Mills instead and the two dances will be held in August at West Paris. They have just switched dates at the two places. Write it down on your calendars so you will know which place to go.

This cooler weather is great after the heat on Thursday and Friday and hope it doesn't get that hot again for a while. Take care one and all and have a good week ahead.

Songo Pond

By ALICE KIMBALL

A food sale to benefit the Songo Cemetery Association will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday, July 12 at the local IGA store.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Grant from Florida enjoyed a shore dinner Saturday at the cottage of Louise Newton. Also recently her son Clay Andrews of Daytona, Florida enjoyed a reunion of schoolmates and family at the Newton cottage. His sister and family from Mars Hill also joined them.

A pre-nuptial shower was hosted Sunday by Mrs. Norma Salway honoring Miss Tara Hutchinson and fiancé Brandon Salway. Lovely gifts were received and refreshments served. Her mother and step-father Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bromage of York also attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Poisson of Manchester, N.H., were at their cottage this weekend. Also the Prebles from Newburyport at theirs.

Norma and I were in Rumford Monday for my appointment.

Craig and Ethel Turner and her son Jonathan were callers here Wednesday evening.

day evening.

Bernie and Kassie and Kaitly, Brandon and Tara spent the holiday with their folks here. The guys spent the afternoon golfing together at Lovell.

The weather has been beautiful all week but the ground is desperately dry. Do hope the prediction of showers today is fulfilled.

The kind of beauty I want most is the hard-to-get kind that comes from within—strength, courage and dignity.—Ruby Dee.

Newry

By JIM ANDERSON

Gil Seeley has visited her niece, Theresa Toti from Harrisville, R.I. There, I finally got Theresa's name right!

The Tetley's are having a visitor, Sandra Sencal from Winchendon, Mass.

Reginald and Karlene Bachelder's son and his family are visiting from Miami, Fla. Donald, Christine and Bret stayed the past weekend with Christine. Bret is staying for two weeks.

Monday morning mother and I were on our way into Bethel when mother finally got to see the Newry Fire Department in action. There was an "oops" fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Corey Vail. Mother sat in the car and I was at the scene, just after supper peanut arrived. She had a chance to see the jeep and the maxim pull up.

On the way to Bethel, afterwards, she had not recognized the Blueberry Kid. He had taken off his winter beard. For a fire during daytime we had 11 people respond to the fire out of 17 members. On July 3, we had another call up in Grafton. I must be getting to be an old fire horse, for I was not going to answer any calls that day. However, when the pager went off, so did I! Once again we had 11 out of 18 members there at the call (at the fire department meeting July 1 we got a new member).

After the fire departments meeting at Sunday River Fire House Monday night, I stopped to watch Alan Fleet (The Blueberry Kid) trim the bushes and tall grass from around the Sunday River School House. Now, I have praised both Tink and Marshal, but not Alan. Alan Fleet is like his brother and father, a quiet man who only speaks when he has something important to say, and he is a thoughtful man. I was trimming the school house so that in the fall it would not be harder of a job. Before the fire department meeting, he was doing some trimming around the station that he is charge of. These three men are just a part of why I am proud of all those who are members of the Newry Fire Department. They are great people to work with! We have a good chief to be lead by!

By the time this is printed, the County Republicans will have met at the Sunday River Fire House. I would like to thank publicly Les Otten for supplying the tables and chairs for the meeting. This makes within a few weeks, the second time Les has helped his community. Thanks Les!

SUMMER PLAYGROUND PROGRAM AT ETHEL BISBEE

The Bethel Recreation Board will once again sponsor the Bethel Area Summer Playground program.

This is a two week program to be held the week of July 15 and July 22 at the Ethel Bisbee School.

The program meets from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Children will need to bring a bag lunch and a beverage. Activities will be provided for the children.

The program is open to all children entering grades K-4.

A $5 fee per child which goes to the Town of Bethel, plus a $5 donation is payable per child per week. The donation covers costs for snacks, refreshments and craft supplies.

Any questions about the program should be directed to Rhonda Buker at 824-3076 or Maryvonne Wheeler at 824-2330.

MOLLYCKETT DAY EVENTS

LUMBERJACKS NEEDED

Through generous support of the local wood products industry the Mollyckett Day Annual Woodmen's Competition will be held on Saturday, July 20, at 1 p.m. on the Bethel Common.

Competition is open to SAD #44 residents, with cash prizes being awarded. Saws will be provided by Lowell Saw Shop Bethel, and Tilton Equipment, Rye, N.H. Safety equipment is mandatory.

The contest is composed of five events and the "Lumberjack of the Year" award. While the total points are being tabulated, a "hot power saw" demonstration will take place.

This annual event is presented by the Bethel Lions Club and organized by Larry "Logger" Smith. Registration forms will be available by contacting him at 824-2615, or on the Commons.

CALLING ALL FROGS

The Mollyckett Day Frog Jumping Contest will take place at 2 p.m. on the lawn of the Moses Mason House.

Children of all ages and frogs of all shapes and sizes are invited to enter. There is a small entry fee, and this year a few new rules; all frogs will be in a container with some water and grass, and when the contest is over, the frogs will be returned to the wood area and not turned loose on the Common.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the frogs that jump the longest distances in three consecutive jumps.

PARADE FLOATS WANTED

The Lions Club is calling for floats, floats and more floats for this year's Mollyckett Day parade.

This year's theme is "Patriotism." What makes a parade? People, from the small child and small flag to the band, floats and honor guards—that makes a parade.

Persons, groups and businesses interested in participating and entering this year's parade, should contact Gert See EVENTS, page 9

Friel, parade chairman, at 824-2107. Mollykett Day is a Bethel annual event, lets show everyone what Bethel is made of. See you on July 20 at 10:30 for the line-up.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

The board of directors will be meeting on Thursday, July 11, for the regular monthly meeting at 7:30 a.m. at the Casco Bank.

It is an extremely busy time of year for the Chamber and our volunteers. Many, many thanks go to Tom McGinniss and his committee for organizing and carrying out a very successful Bethel Art Fair, which was held on the Common on Saturday, July 6. Despite cloudy skies and intermittent drizzle a good number of artists displayed their talents to a very appreciative audience. Many pieces of art left the Common that day, purchased by these folks. Together with food offered by community organizations and music by Don Murphy and friends, it was a great day.

The golf tournament which involved Chamber teams from all around the state was held on Tuesday, July 9. A more detailed article on this will be in next week's paper.

Mollykett Day planning is going well. Chairperson Esther Crockett and crew will be selling delicious lobster rolls on the Common along with cold beverages. The "Wheel of Fortune" game of chance booth will be along side the lobster booth. Race chairmen Dillon Gillies and Mike Cooper encourage all walkers and runners to sign up for this great event before Wednesday, July 17, to be guaranteed a T-shirt sporting a wonderful new design. Applications are available throughout the area and at the Chamber office.

Rotary Club notes

Linda Varrell, branch supervisor of the Bethel Savings Bank, was brought in as a new member at the Tuesday, July 2, meeting by proposer Robin Zinchuk. Linda will be a great asset to the Rotary Club.

President David Murphy presided over the meeting and made several announcements pertaining to upcoming events.

The auction, which is scheduled for Friday, July 19, at Telstar cafeteria, promises to offer many great values for those coming to bid. We encourage all to come.

The Mollykett Day chicken barbecue organized by president elect Jeff Parsons will offer the same quality chicken dinner as has been offered in the past. Hours of operation will be 11 a.m. to sell out.

Robin Zinchuk announced that volunteers are needed to fill the Sesame Street character costumes for the Mollykett Day parade. John and Linda Carson will wear Cookie Monster and Kermit and Jim Sysko will be Oscar the Grouch. Bert, Ernie, The Count and Grover are still up for grabs. Contact Robin at the Chamber office if you are interested.

Guests for the morning were Bill Lowther, Gil Robinson, Ira Pitcher and Jane deFrees.

Secretary Bruce Powell announced that our Club led all clubs in the district 7780 in attendance this past year.

Also recognized and announced was a decision of the Rotary board to make sergeant-at-arms, Dewaine Craig, a Paul Harris Fellow for his extraordinary contributions of service to the community and to Rotary. This is the highest honor of Rotary and Dewaine is very deserving of it. Congratulations, Dewaine.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN UNITED

The monthly meeting of the Christian Women United will be held at the Country Way Restaurant in South Paris on Tuesday, July 16, 1991. The meal will be served at 11:30 a.m. The speaker for the day will be Shelia Sleeper of Oklahoma, and the music will be furnished by Karalee Giasson of Waterford.

Those who have not been contacted and would like reservations may call Leora Whitney at 743-7221, or Pearl Anderson at 743-5724 by Friday, July 12.
